A New Way for Voters to Learn About Candidates Running For Office
What do they have to say?

Voice for Votes is a service created by Rick Bloeser and Next Level Media Company LLC, located in Mystic, Connecticut. The company was formed in 2007 to create and provide informational services utilizing audio on demand technology on the web, while not associated with any political party or special interest group, the goal is to bring forward important, unbiased information that American voters can access during election periods. This service is not intended to compete with existing mass media outlets, but rather to provide convenient access to all levels of public elections and their participating candidates. The service gives candidates the opportunity to create a number of key questions that they feel are particularly relevant to their respective platforms. The questions and answers are recorded in an interview format, for inclusion on the Voice for Votes site.

Voters or prospective voters will be able to visit the free Voice for Votes web site, where they can select the state and the level of government in which they have an interest. For example, this year the local elections in Connecticut will be featured. A comprehensive list of towns and cities will be displayed. Currently the site features the Mayors race in Norwich which you can hear candidates Mark Bettencourt (D), Peter Nystrom (R) and Bob Zarnetske (Norwich for Change) Other cities being added this week are New Britain, New Haven, Norwalk and Stamford, along with selected races in New York and New Jersey. The site will be updated constantly as those with active elections will be highlighted, otherwise links will be directed to the home pages of participating municipalities. Clicking on a candidate's section will bring you to his or her page where you can hear the recorded Q&A interview for each question to better understand what that candidate stands for.

Next year the site will feature all fifty states highlighting State level elections and 2011 aims to present most cities and towns through out the US. For more on the Voice for Votes project visit www.voiceforvotes.com
